1.Course Outline

The module is designed to help the students to think critically and evaluate an economic policy. The structure of the module covers the introduction of critical thinking skills, strategic planning, economic impact, and economic role/policy studies. Students will be expected to employ at least one research methodology on a selected policy.
No textbook is assigned in this course.

2. Objectives

Students should be able to carry out a report to evaluate and discuss policies with adequate methodologies (such as welfare theory, experimental method, and cost benefit analysis).

3. Teaching Method

Students will be given individual after-class assignment, and combine these work into a group work.

4. Evaluation Method

Classroom attendance and quiz (30%), individual report (40%), group presentation (30%). TBC in Week 1.

5. Assignments

Individual report (less than 800 words), final group presentation (20 minutes maximum per group)

6. Experiment, Practical Exercise

There will be a weekly group discussion to discuss the common topics.

7. Related Courses

This module is open only for senior (third-year or final-year) students. The course is based on applications derived from various areas of micro-economy, particularly those of health, environment and education. Fundamental economic theories are required.
